

Goals of the CHRS

(as developed and approved by the 30+ person Advisory Committee)

- The CHRS should produce tools that are valuable for current and future preservation work using formats that are responsive and accessible to multiple audiences.
- The CHRS should be as comprehensive as possible in its coverage and include all relevant periods of history and prehistory; major historical events, trends, and people; and architecture and landscape resources.
- The CHRS should be, as much as possible, inclusive in its process, responsive in its procedures, and up-to-date in its technologies.
- The CHRS should uncover and address questions of significance, boundaries, coverage, and National Register of Historic Places (and other) systems that have not been previously explored even if they cannot be fully resolved within the terms of the CHRS.
